'BRITISH JUDGE IS KIDNAP VICTIM IN HOLY LAND 'SNATCH'

JERUSALEM, Jan. 27.—Ten armed men kidnaped a British judge from his court room in Tel-Aviv today as 5,000 British troops searched Palestine for a civilian abducted earlier by the Jewish underground.

The second British civilian taken hostage by the Jewish underground in less than 24 hours was Judge Ralph Windham, acting president of the district court.

The kidnapers entered the courtroom and forced the 42-year-old jurist to go with them at gunpoint. The abduction victim is the heir presumptive to the Bowyer-Smyth baronetcy in England.

The daring kidnaping occurred as squads of British troops poured through Jerusalem and its suburbs seeking the first kidnap victim, for British Major H. I. Collins, a director of the British-owned Jewish bank.

DANIELS BILL TO AID SCHOOLS

Ohio C Of C Recommends Better Supervision Of State Aid Funds

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 27.—A bill providing some 184 million dollars for state aid to schools is expected to be introduced in the Ohio senate tonight by Sen. Albert Daniels (R-Greenfield), senate finance committee chairman.

The bill, sponsored by the Ohio Education association, represents an increase of some 33 millions a year more than the 59 millions in state aid during 1946.

Furthermore, it is 73 millions more than the 111 million dollar subsidy voted for the 1945-46 biennium—and, its backers indicated it may go to 10 millions higher.

Daniels, who has championed all school measures in the past, cited the need for increased salaries to teachers to keep schools adequately staffed and the rising cost of school operation and equipment to justify the huge increase.

Meanwhile, the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, which has locked horns frequently with the OEA in the past, recommended "improved supervision and better administration" in the handling of the 60 million dollars a year in state funds which the chamber said the schools now get.

The chamber said that at least two and a half millions a year could be saved by:

1.—Amendment of the law to protect school district reorganization proposals of county boards from nullification by a single district, with an estimated savings of $500,000.

2.—Provision for school board ownership of buses and consolidation of school transportation systems on a countywide basis, with (Continued on Page Two)

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kierman

The outlook for '47 continues bright. The price of bicycles has gone down 50 cents and Mr. Truman is considering extending control of molasses.

There is even a brighter outlook for jaded appetites. King Saud gave a banquet at which the main dish was camel and rice.

I'm not sure whether the camel is stuffed. It would take a lot of rice to stuff a camel.

It may have been served as smoked camel. I've heard somewhere that Saudi-Arabians smoke more camels than any other brand of people.

Even culture is experiencing an upsurge. Students of Phillips Exeter academy are campaigning for the continuation of Greek and Latin in the curriculum.

All the time we thought culture was dead it has been living quietly in a small room in New Hampshire.

This is no time to give up. This is a time to rap on the door of opportunity and say "open the door Richard!"

Lilienthal Tells Solons Security Top Problem

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—David E. Lilienthal, chairman-elect of the atomic energy commission, assured congress today that he places national security paramount in undertaking what he calls his "terrible responsibility."

The former TVA chairman told senate members of the joint atomic commission that the security problem is "at least as great" as it was during the war.

Lilienthal, now 47, reported that the atomic commission of which he is chairman—subject to senate confirmation—completed transfer of the Manhattan project to its own organization as of midnight, Dec. 31, 1946.

Under questioning, he said he and commission members had conferred repeatedly with Gen. Leslie Groves, the Manhattan chief, but could not recall whether any such meetings had occurred since Dec. 31.

Sen. Vandenberg (R) Mich., asked: "Has there been any disposition to be prejudiced against military advisers?"

Lilienthal replied, "No. We are now in the process of seeking the best man we can find for the post of director of military applications."

As the meeting got underway, Sen. McKellar (D) Tenn., was on hand, primed to cross-examine Lilienthal on what the senator charges have been "Communist" connections during his tenure as TVA chairman.

But Chairman Hickenlooper (R) Iowa, devoted the first part of the hearing to a review of Lilienthal's background and general objectives in his new post.

Lilienthal emphasized that all "Urals" building an atomic fission plant while UN control of the atomic bomb is delayed by disarmament debate.

GRACE MOORE, SWEDISH PRINCE 20 OTHERS DIE

Governments Of 2 Countries Probe Fatal Accident At Copenhagen

COPENHAGEN, Jan. 27.—Grief-stricken Denmark combined mourning with rigorous investigation today in the wake of the disastrous Dutch air-liner crash which claimed the lives of Grace Moore, Prince Gustav Adolf of Sweden and 20 other persons.

The plane was virtually atomized by the crash plus the explosion and fire that followed and there was little hope that satisfactory explanation would be uncovered.

The bodies of American opera singer Miss Moore, that of the Swedish prince, second in line of succession to the throne, and of Gerda Neumann, a Danish actress, are the only ones that could be identified positively.

Authorities took their first step to prevent a repetition of the disaster by issuing an order setting the limit of weight that can be carried by Dakota planes of this type in takeoffs and landings.

Separate Ohio Engineering And Agriculture Schools Proposed By Auditor

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 27.—The establishment of separate colleges of agriculture and engineering, independent of control of Ohio State University, was suggested today by State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson.

Ferguson told the university board of trustees and President Howard L. Bevis that he "will refuse to pay for any land purchased by the university in Marion or any other city" unless the legislature authorizes the institution to "branch out in cities other than Columbus."

Ferguson's statement followed published reports that the trustees had authorized Bevis to negotiate for the purchase of 4,000 acres of ground near Marion for use in agriculture and engineering. During the war the land was part of the Scioto ordnance plant.

GRAND JURY TO RECONVENE HERE TUESDAY AT 10

Pickaway county grand jury will reconvene at 10 a. m. Tuesday by order of Common Pleas Judge William D. Radcliff.

She had obtained a divorce Dec. 31, 1946.

Members of the grand jury are: John Hay, Ashville, RFD, foreman; T. D. Krinn, Edward C. Rector, J. I. Smith, Jr., Ruth Downing, Clinton D. Heffner, Mrs. Laura Bowers, Emery Reay, Miss Alice M. Weaver, Blanche Carter, Albert Kempton, C. M. Reid, Wendell Tarbill, W. E. Luckhart and Ralph Willoughby.

Grace Moore Was Often Tragic Figure In Opera

BY JAMES POWERS
INS Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Friends and associates of Grace Moore in New York pointed out today that her tragic death Sunday might have been taken as a script from the grand opera she interpreted so brilliantly.

Scores of times, the blue-eyed, blonde soprano had portrayed a beautiful young woman cut down by death in such parts as Mimi in "La Boheme," Floria Tosca, in "Tosca," and as Juliette in "Romeo and Juliette."

It was a spectacular, world-noted ending to a career that often as not made front pages through-out the world.

For the Tennessee-born girl who did her first singing in a Baptist choir was a diva in the most glamorous sense of the romantic tradition: colorful, extravagant, pleasure-loving and temperamental, she also possessed that indescribable spark that set audiences wild.

She received perhaps the greatest ovation ever given a singer when she played "La Boheme" at England's staid Covent Garden in 1934.

Paris took her to its heart as it had not another American singer since Geraldine Farrar. She traveled tens of thousands of miles to sing for troops during the war. She had a commanding personality and great ambition. Music critics took her to task when she played "Tosca," as a blonde. They said the heroine, an opera singer, was traditionally an Italian brunet.

Miss Moore replied calmly that she saw no reason why Tosca shouldn't be a blonde and played her that way, stunningly outfitted in specially designed gowns by Valentina.

The one-time musical comedy star, whose first New York appearance was in a musical titled "Hitchy-Koo 1920," made her debut at the Metropolitan in 1928.

TEACHER FALLS TO DEATH FROM SCHOOL BUILDING

CLEVELAND, Jan. 27.—Albert Keckritz, 55, acting head of the mathematics department at Cleveland's Fairmont junior high school, was killed today in a three-story fall from a school building window.

Keckritz's body was discovered outside the building shortly before classes were to start. A physician was called and pronounced him dead.

School authorities said that there were no witnesses to the fall. Keckritz had taught at Fairmont for the last 24 years and was well-liked by school associates and pupils.

The Cuyahoga county coroner's office began an immediate investigation.

PRO-PUBLIC LAW IS URGED BY SENATOR WILEY

Solon Contends 'Recession Threatens America', Asks Speedy Action

HOUSE HEARINGS DUE

Speaker Martin Says Issue Will Be Handled By Judiciary Group

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—Sen. Wiley (R) Wis., urged the senate today to pass immediately "pro-public" legislation to bar portal-to-portal pay suits because "a recession threatens America."

The senate judiciary chairman, author of one bill now before a judiciary subcommittee, declared that "enemies at home and abroad are making the most of this chaotic uncertainty."

Wiley said: "To American free enterprise, 'portal-to-portal' means 'to rack and ruin.'"

Reviewing his own bill, Wiley said he thought a two-year statute of limitations would be "reasonable" as the only non-portal change in the wage-hour act which should be acted on at present.

Wiley said the portal-to-portal problem is "so urgent" that other amendments to make certain that labor's "basic rights" are preserved may have to be deferred to a later date. He declared:

"There is no blinking at the fact a recession threatens America. These portal-to-portal suits make that recession more and more possible. Time is working against us; we must act now on this legislation to curb this spreading fear that is paralyzing all industry."

The chairman said that labor would "suffer" with other groups if the portal question is not met immediately.

Wiley pointed out that his bill would:

1. Bar recovery in both pending and future portal pay suits filed by labor unions under the supreme court's Mt. Clemens decision.

2. Define "work week" as only that time during which an employee is engaged in productive work unless covered by agreement or considered compensable by custom.

3. Bar filing of suits for any but productive work as defined in his bill.

4. Free employers from liability if they show their violations of the act was in "good faith."

5. Permit compromise and settlement of portal claims.

Wiley was one of the final witnesses. Sen. Donnell (R) Mo., subcommittee chairman, said the group's report would be prepared as rapidly as possible.

House Speaker Martin (R) Mass., announced today that portal-to-portal pay legislation will be handled by the judiciary committee, and that hearings would begin in "the near future."

Martin's decision broke the jurisdictional dispute between the judiciary and labor committees, which had been delaying hearings to outlaw more than four billion dollars in such suits now before the courts.

Martin said that the legislation decided upon would be patterned after a measure proposed by Rep. Gwynne (R) Iowa, limiting the jurisdiction of the courts to hear such suits.

ANTI-PETRILLO LAW APPROVAL ASKED BY U. S.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—The justice department today urged the supreme court to uphold the constitutionality of the "anti-Petrillo" law passed by the 79th congress.

The government filed an appeal with the high court from a northern district court of Illinois decision ruling the statute unconstitutional and dismissing a violation charge against James C. Petrillo, president of the American Federation of Musicians.

In asking the high tribunal to reverse this holding the government said the law:

"Represents the deliberate judgment of congress as to an evil affecting the broadcasting system of the nation and to the best methods of remedying such evil."

As two gunmen burst through the door of Judge Windham's court eight others sitting in the public gallery drew pistols and prevented court attendants and spectators from making any outcry.

Previously all telephone wires in the building had been cut. The kidnaping was accomplished in a single minute.

Shortly after Collins was kidnaped by armed, masked abductors, the Orgun Zvai Leumi radio broadcast a warning to British authorities not to carry out the death sentence against Dov Gruner, 33-year-old underground comrade. Gruner was condemned to death for participating in the bombing of a police station in April.

Collins, who resigned his commission to enter civilian life, was kidnaped while visiting a friend by four masked men and a girl. The abduction took place in the heart of Jerusalem.

Infantry units, Bren gun carriers and armored cars were rushed into the city to initiate the hunt for the former cavalry officer. Pictures of the kidnap victim were quickly printed and distributed to squads of police cars.

All traffic was being halted and police stations at Bethlehem, Hebron and other sectors of South Palestine were alerted to halt any attempts to smuggle Collins from the city.

Last week, British army authorities increased patrols from three to four members as a safeguard against kidnaping attempts. All cafes, theaters and similar public places were placed out of bounds for British personnel.

Meanwhile, the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, which has locked horns frequently with the OEA in the past, recommended "improved supervision and better administration" in the handling of the 60 million dollars a year in state funds which the chamber said the schools now get.

AIRBORNE RADAR USE IN PACIFIC WAR REVEALED

WRIGHT FIELD, DAYTON, O., Jan. 27 — Use of a revolutionary and highly successful type of airborne radar during the final weeks of the war against Japan was disclosed today by the air materiel command of the Army air forces.

Wright field officers said that the new radar, known as the Eagle, brought the best bombing results ever achieved with blind bombing radars. They quoted AAF officers in the Pacific as reporting that accuracy achieved with the Eagle was nearly as great as that when using optical bombights against visible targets.

The electronic subdivision of the AMC's engineering division has employed the Eagle in developing new airborne radar equipment for combat aircraft and for peacetime all-weather flying.

Principal difference between the Eagle and previous airborne bombing radars is a 16-foot linear antenna structure. Most such radars employ a rotary dish or spinner antenna.

Speaker Martin Says Issue Will Be Handled By Judiciary Group

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27—Sen. Wiley (R) Wis., urged the senate today to pass immediately "pro-public" legislation to bar portal-to-portal pay suits because "a recession threatens America."

The senate judiciary chairman, author of one bill now before a judiciary subcommittee, declared that "enemies at home and abroad are making the most of this chaotic uncertainty."

Wiley pointed out that his bill would:

1. Bar recovery in both pending and future portal pay suits filed by labor unions under the supreme court's Mt. Clemens decision.

2. Define "work week" as only that time during which an employee is engaged in productive work unless covered by agreement or considered compensable by custom.

3. Bar filing of suits for any but productive work as defined in his bill.

4. Free employers from liability if they show their violations of the act was in "good faith."

5. Permit compromise and settlement of portal claims.

Wiley was one of the final witnesses. Sen. Donnell (R) Mo., subcommittee chairman, said the group's report would be prepared as rapidly as possible.

House Speaker Martin (R) Mass., announced today that portal-to-portal pay legislation will be handled by the judiciary committee, and that hearings would begin in "the near future."

Martin's decision broke the jurisdictional dispute between the judiciary and labor committees, which had been delaying hearings to outlast more than four billion dollars in such suits now before the courts.

Martin said that the legislation decided upon would be patterned after a measure proposed by Rep. Gwynne (R) Iowa, limiting the jurisdiction of the courts to hear such suits.

ANTI-PETRILLO LAW APPROVAL ASKED BY U. S.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27—The justice department today urged the supreme court to uphold the constitutionality of the "anti-Petrillo" law passed by the 79th congress.

The government filed an appeal with the high court from a northern district court of Illinois decision ruling the statute unconstitutional and dismissing a violation charge against James C. Petrillo, president of the American Federation of Musicians.

In asking the high tribunal to reverse this holding the government said the law:

"Represents the deliberate judgment of congress as to an evil affecting the broadcasting system of the nation and to the best methods of remedying such evil."

is 739 kilos (1,625 pounds) less than the weight recorded when the ill-fated ship went into its crash yesterday.

Authorities communicated with relatives of the victims asking for dental charts to facilitate investigation.

Court mourning for a period of 14 days was ordered throughout Denmark, and all flags flew at half-staff. Crown Prince Gustav Adolf, 65-year old father of the prince who lost his life, is arriving in Copenhagen tonight.

Memorial services for the royal victim will be held in the Swedish church of Copenhagen within the next day or two as circumstances permit. The body of the democratic, popular and sports-loving prince then will be placed aboard the Swedish battleship Oscar II for shipment home.

On behalf of Denmark, the formal investigation was headed by M. P. Eklundsen, who personally expressed doubt the actual cause of the crash ever will be ascertained. He described the plane as "almost powdered by the intense heat and smashed to smithereens."

All witnesses at the airport seemed to agree that one engine suddenly failed a few seconds after the liner left the field. Its angle of elevation was far above normal and the pilot failed in his attempts to straighten the ship out.

Miss Moore's husband, the ailing Spanish actor Valentin Parera, left Cannes for Copenhagen despite the precarious state of his health. This was established by the American legation which attempted to telephone him but found he already had departed.

Funeral plans for the blonde Tennessee artist will await his arrival but it is expected generally she would be buried in Copenhagen.

An official at the airport said it was possible that the steering or elevating gear of the Dakota airliner might have become entangled with the mechanism of the automatic pilot.

Court mourning was ordered in both Denmark and Sweden in respect to the dead Swedish prince while music circles throughout Europe paid tribute to the Tennessee-born Metropolitan opera soprano.

Identification of the 22 victims of the Dutch airlines transport crash at Copenhagen airdrome was made only by personal effects found in the charred wreckage.

The transport, enroute from Amsterdam to Stockholm, exploded on impact with the ground and became a furnace of flames which burned away all but the wing structure and part of the fuselage.

The dead pilot of the plane was Capt. M. G. J. Geissendorfer, a veteran of 30 years of flying.

The dead prince is survived by his widow, Princess Sibylle of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, a relative of the Windsor Royal family of England, a son and four daughters.

Miss Moore boarded the plane at Copenhagen to fly to Stockholm for a concert appearance tonight. She had invited two Danish friends, the singer, Gerda Neumann, and the latter's husband, Jens Dennyow, to accompany her on the flight. Both perished with her in the crash.

She was presented to the Swedish prince shortly before boarding the plane.

JAMES JORDAN TO FACE JUDGE HERE TUESDAY

James Jordan, 35, Portsmouth, is scheduled for arraignment Tuesday before Common Pleas Judge William D. Radcliff on an indictment charging him with the burglary last Sept. 5 of the James D. Butts general store at the village of Fox.

Taken into custody last week at Mount Clemens, Mich., the accused man was removed to the Pickaway county jail Sunday by Deputy Sheriff Vern L. Pontious who was accompanied by County Prosecutor Kenneth Robbins.

Jordan had eluded capture since three men forced entrance to the Butts establishment and stole a 500-pound safe containing $200. Within 24 hours afterward Walter L. Robert, 29, and Wilbur Jeffords, 37, both of Portsmouth, were arrested. They were indicted, entered guilty pleas, and each is now serving one to 15 years in the Ohio Penitentiary.

TRUMAN NAMES 'HAND-PICKED' ARMY OFFICERS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27—President Truman today sent to the senate for confirmation the names of 1,864 "hand-picked" officers he has selected for permanent commissions in the regular army.

They were chosen from 70,000 officers and former brass of the national guard, officers reserve corps and the wartime army.

All took special scientific examinations to determine their eligibility for commissions under the second regular Army integration program.

The army's need for specialists in meeting atomic age demands was emphasized by disclosure that 1,073 would be assigned to the technical and administrative services. The air corps would draw 589 and the ground forces 202.

The war department said that another increment will be selected in about three or four months followed by still another in the late Summer of this year.

'BLACK DAHLIA AVENGER' OFFERS TO SURRENDER

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 27—The Los Angeles Examiner today received a postcard signed "The Black Dahlia Avenger" saying the killer of Elizabeth Short would surrender to police at 10 a. m. Wednesday.

The message was contained in crudely printed capital letters with black ink on a one-cent U. S. government post card. It bore no punctuation.

Postal Supervisor Edgar H. Moore said the postcard apparently was mailed about 5:30 p. m. yesterday in downtown Los Angeles. It was postmarked at 6:30 p. m. at the postoffice's terminal annex office.

A letter containing the slain girl's address book, photographs and social security card was mailed Friday from downtown Los Angeles to "The Los Angeles Examiner and other newspapers." On the outside of the envelope Friday's letter promised "letter to follow."

GOV. HERBERT MAY GIVE COURT JOB TO STEWART

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 27—A new move to cement the solidity of the Ohio Republican party was seen today in reports that Governor Herbert will appoint Cincinnati's Mayor James Garfield Stewart to a possible vacancy on the state supreme court.

The vacancy is supposed to occur with the hinted resignation of Judge Charles S. Bell, who was just re-elected to a new six-year term last November. Bell is said to be desirous of returning to the position he formerly filled on the Hamilton county common pleas bench, where a vacancy now exists due to the recent death of Judge Fred Hoffman.

Rumor has it that Bell will resign this week, and that Herbert then will name him to succeed the late Judge Hoffman, and Stewart to succeed Bell on the state's highest tribunal.

It was recalled that the GOP was almost split asunder in 1944 when Stewart won the gubernatorial nomination over Governor Herbert and Lt. Gov. Paul M. Herbert, only to lose the election to former Governor Lausche.

He added: "It seems obvious to me that a more likely explanation is that Kapitzka is now busy at work behind the Urals constructing an atomic fission plant. However, I cannot prove it. I do not know and none of us knows and there is no way of knowing."

Messersmith conferred with President Truman before leaving for Miami tonight on the first leg of his return trip to Buenos Aires. The ambassador was complimentary toward the Argentine government in his discussion with reporters after his conference with the President.

JAMES JORDAN TO FACE JUDGE HERE TUESDAY

James Jordan, 35, Portsmouth, is scheduled for arraignment Tuesday before Common Pleas Judge William D. Radcliff on an indictment charging him with the burglary last Sept. 5 of the James D. Butts general store at the village of Fox.

Taken into custody last week at Mount Clemens, Mich., the accused man was removed to the Pickaway county jail Sunday by Deputy Sheriff Vern L. Pontious who was accompanied by County Prosecutor Kenneth Robbins.

Jordan had eluded capture since three men forced entrance to the Butts establishment and stole a 500-pound safe containing $200. Within 24 hours afterward Walter L. Robert, 29, and Wilbur Jeffords, 37, both of Portsmouth, were arrested. They were indicted, entering guilty pleas, and each is now serving one to 15 years in the Ohio Penitentiary.

TRUMAN NAMES 'HAND-PICKED' ARMY OFFICERS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—President Truman today sent to the senate for confirmation the names of 1,864 "hand-picked" officers he has selected for permanent commissions in the regular army.

They were chosen from 70,000 officers and former brass of the national guard, officers reserve corps and the wartime army.

All took special scientific examinations to determine their eligibility for commissions under the second regular Army integration program.

The army's need for specialists in meeting atomic age demands was emphasized by disclosure that 1,073 would be assigned to the technical and administrative services. The air corps would draw 589 and the ground forces 202.

The war department said that another increment will be selected in about three or four months followed by still another in the late Summer of this year.

Of the group up for confirmation today, 189 were nominated to be majors; 487 captains; 1,010 first lieutenants; and 198 second lieutenants.

"It would be a wise idea too if some university professors would keep off other state department payrolls and quit drawing two salaries, and also discontinue writing books on the university's time for private profit."

'BLACK DAHLIA AVENGER' OFFERS TO SURRENDER

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 27.—The Los Angeles Examiner today received a postcard signed "The Black Dahlia Avenger" saying the killer of Elizabeth Short would surrender to police at 10 a. m. Wednesday.

The message was contained in crudely printed capital letters with black ink on a one-cent U. S. government post card. It bore no punctuation.

Postal Supervisor Edgar H. Moore said the postcard apparently was mailed about 5:30 p. m. yesterday in downtown Los Angeles. It was postmarked at 6:30 p. m. at the postoffice's terminal annex office.

A letter containing the slain girl's address book, photographs and social security card was mailed Friday from downtown Los Angeles to "the Los Angeles Examiner and other newspapers." On the outside of the envelope Friday's letter promised "letter to follow."

The attorney general said that the probe would be conducted mainly at night in visits to the places designated in the licenses.

Jenkins said that an initial probe of several of the licenses indicated they were of "flimsy foundation."

GOV. HERBERT MAY GIVE COURT JOB TO STEWART

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 27.—A new move to cement the solidity of the Ohio Republican party was seen today in reports that Governor Herbert will appoint Cincinnati's Mayor James Garfield Stewart to a possible vacancy on the state supreme court.

The vacancy is supposed to occur with the hinted resignation of Judge Charles S. Bell, who was just re-elected, to a new six-year term last November. Bell is said to be desirous of returning to the position he formerly filled on the Hamilton county common pleas bench, where a vacancy now exists due to the recent death of Judge Fred Hoffman.

Rumor has it that Bell will resign this week, and that Herbert then will name him to succeed the late Judge Hoffman, and Stewart to succeed Bell on the state's highest tribunal.

It was recalled that the GOP was almost split asunder in 1944 when Stewart won the gubernatorial nomination over Governor Herbert and Lt. Gov. Paul M. Herbert, only to lose the election to former Governor Lausche.

If Stomach Gas or Sour Food Taste Robs You of Sleep

Here's How You May Help, Whether You Eat 500 Pounds or 2000 Pounds of Food In a Year

You can't feel cheerful, be happy and sleep well, if your stomach is always upset. As age advances the "old stomach" needs more help. The reason is this: Everytime food enters the stomach a vital gastric juice must flow normally to break up certain food particles; else the food may ferment. Sour food, acid indigestion and gas frequently cause a morbid, touchy, fretful, peevish, nervous condition. Loss of appetite, underweight, restless sleep, weakness.

To get real relief you must increase the flow of this vital gastric juice. Medical authorities, in independent laboratory tests on human stomachs, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in increasing this flow when it is too little or scanty due to a non-organic stomach disturbance. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains very special and potent acting ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps build-up non-organic, weak, watery blood in nutritional anemia—so with a good flow of this gastric digestive juice, plus rich red blood you should eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better.

Avoid punishing yourself with over-doses of soda and other alkalizers to counteract gas and bloating when what you so truly need is SSS Tonic to help you digest food for body strength and repair. Don't wait! Join the host of happy people SSS Tonic has helped. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle of SSS Tonic from your drug store today. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

OHIO ASSEMBLY BEGINS FOURTH WEEK OF WORK

131 Bills, 42 Resolutions
Awaiting Action By
Buckeye Solons

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 27.—The Ohio legislature begins a fourth week of deliberations tonight with sessions that may provide an answer to the question of how long the 97th general assembly will last.

Although 131 bills and 42 resolutions have been dumped into the legislative hopper, little has actually been accomplished to date other than organization. However, committee hearings—the real down-to-earth work of the solons—begin this week.

The solons optimistically began their sessions three weeks ago with hopes of winding up their affairs of state by May 1—despite belief of most legislative correspondents that it would be June 15 or July 1 before sine die or final adjournment.

Just how fast things will go will be indicated by the speed with which the committees function. They must avoid prolonged hearings if the May deadline—or any date approaching it—is to be met.

Major hearing of the week scheduled to date is that tomorrow of the senate military affairs committee, which will begin hearings on soldier bonus proposals.

Actually, the proposals are in the form of resolutions, since a constitutional amendment—requiring the approval of the voters—is necessary to issue the $25 to $50 million dollars worth of bonds to finance a soldier bonus. If the legislature approves a bonus resolution by three-fifths vote of both houses, the measure will be submitted to the people in November.

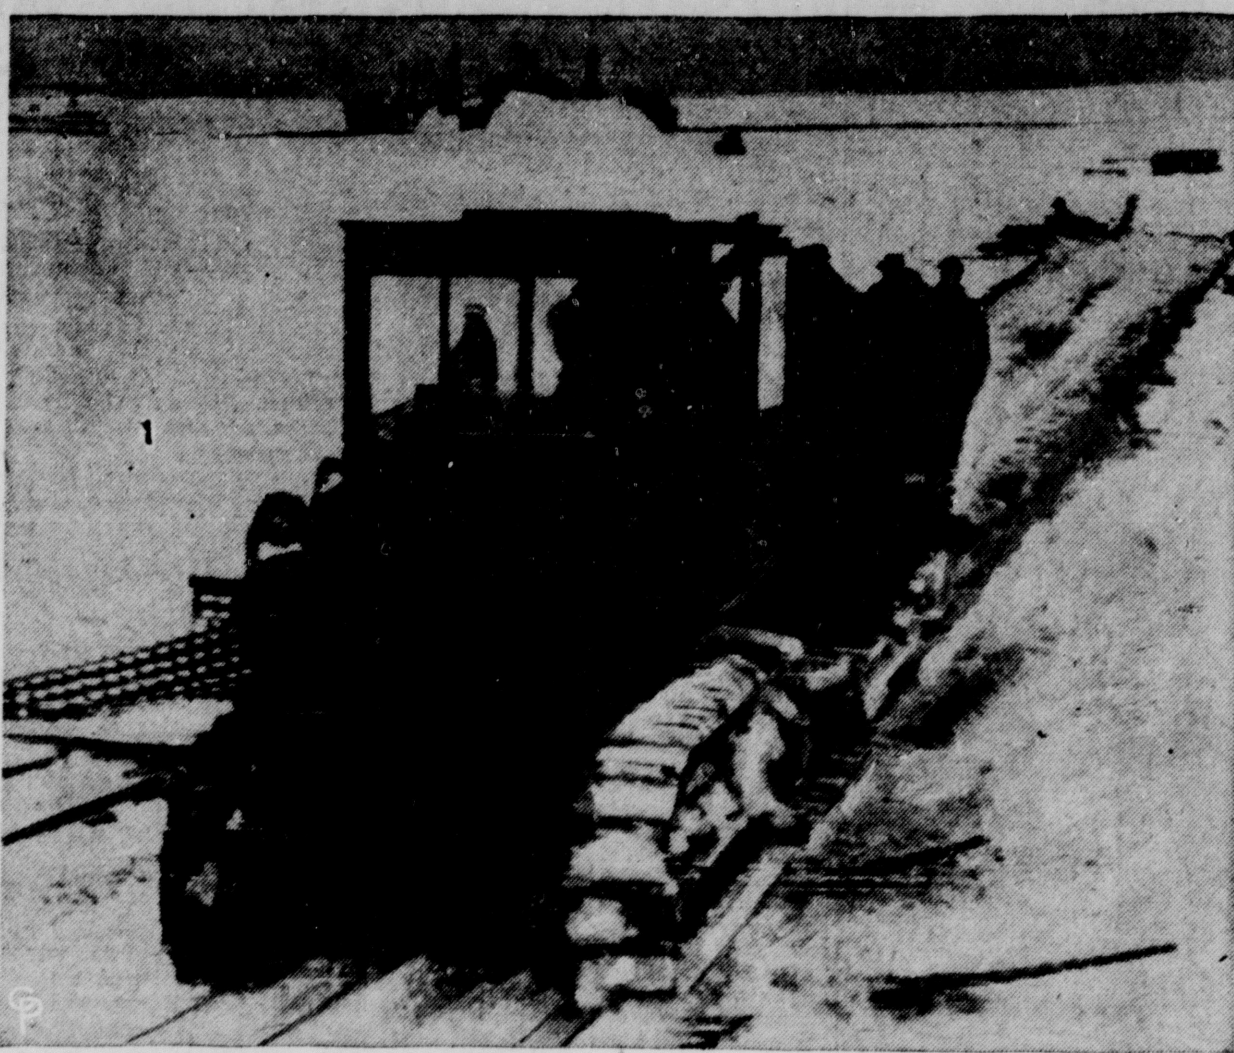

The senate will conduct a "business as usual" session tonight, although the house will hold only a skeleton session, with no new bills expected. The lower chamber has yet to schedule committee hearings on the four bonus proposals submitted to it.

The house has established a deadline of February 10 for the submission of bills, which means another flood of measures this week. The senate, however, permits new bills to be introduced right up to the day of adjournment.

The biggest problem facing the solons is one of adjusting—new spending demands to Governor Herbert's plea for economy in government. More money is certainly going to be provided for schools, local government and state employees, most observers believe. How much probably will await two things—the forthcoming overall report by state tax commissioner C. Emory Glander, expected within the next few days, and the biennial budget, which finance director Herbert Defenbacher will labor over for weeks to come.

Pending these two reports, the flood of financial measures already introduced or which will be tossed in the hopper probably will remain pending. They include bills to cut the sales tax, increase funds to schools and local governments, raise salaries of state workers, or

Soil Conservation Notes

By J. A. Muster

Setting aside of one of the former rotated fields for Summer rotation pasture is a practice to be initiated on several farms which were planned with the Pickaway Soil Conservation District the past year.

This practice is so rare that it may be listed as a new one in Pickaway county, according to James A. Muster, soil conservationist. To meet the serious pasture shortage in July, August and early September, some farmers now plan to divide a field in halves, seeding Sudan grass after corn planting time in half the field. Sudan grass furnishes abundant forage from early July to mid-September.

In the meantime, in late August, to vacate certain state fields of taxation to make them available for leases by local governments.

Other bills already introduced, or which certainly will be, call for labor union regulation, a fair employment practices committee, strip mine regulation, a unified conservation department, county-wide zoning, revision of the state liquor laws and an investigation of the feasibility of the state's liquor monopoly, an expanded highway system including a possible turnpike commission, and expanded public health and welfare facilities.

In all, Governor Herbert suggested a 17-part legislative program in his legislative message a week ago. Bills covering—fully or partially—11 of those subjects have been introduced in one or both houses, but the only measure actually enacted into law was the 109-million dollar partial appropriations bill, providing funds for state operation until July 1.

rye or wheat and hairy vetch, are sown on the other half of the field to furnish pasture after the Sudan season is over and also from mid-April to early June the following year. 15 to 30 lbs. of hairy vetch and about 1½ bus. of small grain are sown, both being mixed and drilled together, the vetch to be inoculated. Inoculating and specifying hairy vetch are both essential items and fertilizer should be used also.

These pastures supplementing the second or third year meadows—depending on the length of the rotation, plus the permanent pasture, should furnish satisfactory all season pasture production. Such pastures plans are included in the programs of W. H. Crow near Duval, George E. Peters at Robtown, Fred Corcoran near Williamsport and W. G. Wilder in Jackson township. Milton H. Renick at Darbyville plans a rotation of alfalfa-grass pasture in four sections of a 36-acre field.

Eleven cooperators of the soil conservation district who are trying Marietta timothy in 1947 recently had their timothy plots spotted on a farm map prepared by the district. Followup observations are to be made this year and results made known. The same procedure is being followed in the cases of five men who seeded the new Ellsberry bromegrass last Spring.

DO NOT BLAME YOUR MILKMAN

Yellow Color Of Milk Fades During Winter Without Green Feed

Don't blame the milkman for color change in milk!

Several local housewives have complained recently about the color of the milk their milkman is leaving them. This is a true observation and from now until the pasture season, the yellow color of milk will become weaker and weaker, according to L. A. Best, Pickaway County Agricultural Agent.

This should be no source of complaint to the milkman, for it is nothing but a reflection of the quality of the roughage fed to the cows producing the milk.

The yellow color in milk is due to a yellow pigment called carotene, which originates in the feed consumed. Green feed, hay-crop silage, corn silage and well made hay are the common sources of carotene for dairy cows in winter. During the pasture season, maximum amounts of carotene are consumed, but if high quality hays and silage are fed liberally during the winter months it is possible to keep the yellow color of milk at a fairly high concentration, experts explain.

Dairy cattle breeds vary in their ability to pass on the carotene they consume into the milk they produce, but the milk that is delivered to most homes, unless of a special grade, is from a mixed supply in which the change in color may be apparent.

Until much greater production and storage of high quality roughages for winter feeding comes about, this color variation in market milk will continue to exist.

SAVINGS BOND SALE IN COUNTY $654,447 IN '46

Sales of U. S. Savings bonds during 1946 in Pickaway county totaled $654,447, it was announced Monday by Percy W. Brown, Cleveland, state chairman for the Ohio savings bond division of the U. S. Treasury Department.

His announcement said the state-wide sale in 1946 totaled $464,500,000 as compared with $773,300,000 in 1945. He said that Ohio, the fifth state in population, ranks, fifth in purchase of bonds last year.

More and more farmers are adopting improved harvesting and storage procedures, for such practices not only affect the quality of the milk produced but increases the efficiency of production.

OHIO ASSEMBLY BEGINS FOURTH WEEK OF WORK

131 Bills, 42 Resolutions
Awaiting Action By
Buckeye Solons

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 27—The Ohio legislature begins a fourth week of deliberations tonight with sessions that may provide an answer to the question of how long the 97th general assembly will last.

Although 131 bills and 42 resolutions have been dumped into the legislative hopper, little has actually been accomplished to date other than organization. However, committee hearings—the real down-to-earth work of the solons—begin this week.

The solons optimistically began their sessions three weeks ago with hopes of winding up their affairs of state by May 1—despite belief of most legislative correspondents that it would be June 15 or July 1 before sine die or final adjournment.

Just how fast things will go will be indicated by the speed with which the committees function. They must avoid prolonged hearings if the May deadline—or any date approaching it—is to be met.

Major hearing of the week scheduled to date is that tomorrow of the senate military affairs committee, which will begin hearings on soldier bonus proposals.

Actually, the proposals are in the form of resolutions, since a constitutional amendment—requiring the approval of the voters—is necessary to issue the $25 to $50 million dollars worth of bonds to finance a soldier bonus. If the legislature approves a bonus resolution by three-fifths vote of both houses, the measure will be submitted to the people in November.

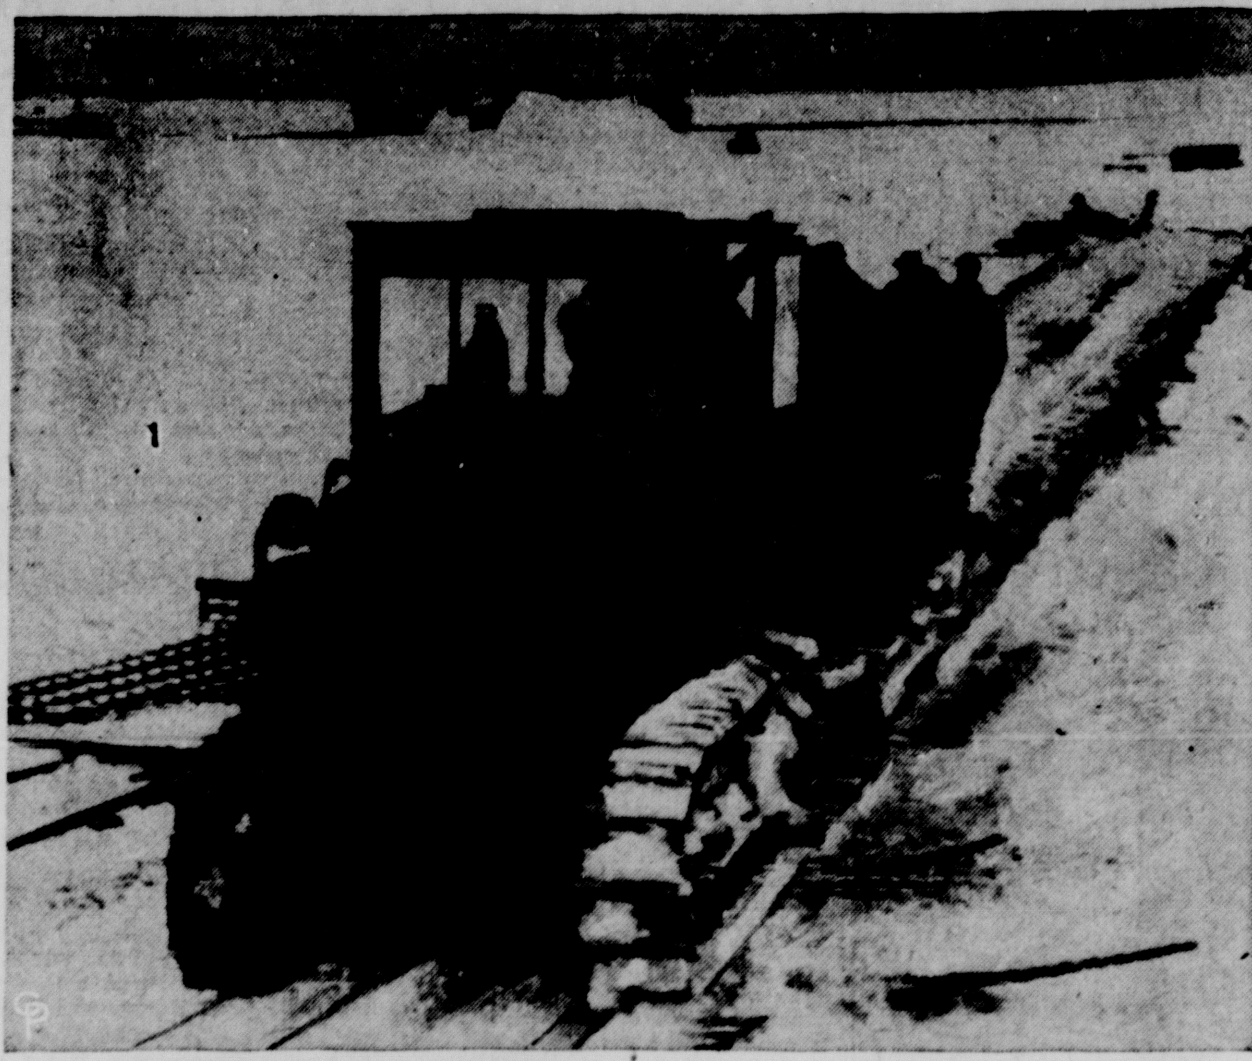

The senate will conduct a "business as usual" session tonight, although the house will hold only a skeleton session, with no new bills expected. The lower chamber has yet to schedule committee hearings on the four bonus proposals submitted to it.

The house has established a deadline of February 10 for the submission of bills, which means another flood of measures this week. The senate, however, permits new bills to be introduced right up to the day of adjournment.

The biggest problem facing the solons is one of adjusting—new spending demands to Governor Herbert's plea for economy in government. More money is certainly going to be provided for schools, local government and state employees, most observers believe. How much probably will await two things—the forthcoming overall report by state tax commissioner C. Emory Glander, expected within the next few days, and the biennial budget, which finance director Herbert Defenbacher will labor over for weeks to come.

Pending these two reports, the flood of financial measures already introduced or which will be tossed in the hopper probably will remain pending. They include bills to cut the sales tax, increase funds to schools and local governments, raise salaries of state workers, or

By J. A. Muster

Setting aside of one of the former rotated fields for Summer rotation pasture is a practice to be initiated on several farms which were planned with the Pickaway Soil Conservation District the past year.

This practice is so rare that it may be listed as a new one in Pickaway county, according to James A. Muster, soil conservationist. To meet the serious pasture shortage in July, August and early September, some farmers now plan to divide a field in halves, seeding Sudan grass after corn planting time in half the field. Sudan grass furnishes abundant forage from early July to mid-September.

In the meantime, in late August, to vacate certain state fields of taxation to make them available for levies by local governments.

Other bills already introduced, or which certainly will be, call for labor union regulation, a fair employment practices committee, strip mine regulation, a unified conservation department, county-wide zoning, revision of the state liquor laws and an investigation of the feasibility of the state's liquor monopoly, an expanded highway system including a possible turnpike commission, and expanded public health and welfare facilities.

In all, Governor Herbert suggested a 17-part legislative program in his legislative message a week ago. Bills covering—fully or partially—11 of those subjects have been introduced in one or both houses, but the only measure actually enacted into law was the 100-million dollar partial appropriations bill, providing funds for state operation until July 1.

rye or wheat and hairy vetch, are sown on the other half of the field to furnish pasture after the Sudan season is over and also from mid-April to early June the following year. 15 to 30 lbs. of hairy vetch and about 1½ bus. of small grain are sown, both being mixed and drilled together, the vetch to be inoculated. Inoculating and specifying hairy vetch are both essential items and fertilizer should be used also.

These pastures supplementing the second or third year meadows—depending on the length of the rotation, plus the permanent pasture, should furnish satisfactory all season pasture production. Such pastures plans are included in the programs of W. H. Crow near Duval, George E. Peters at Robtown, Fred Corcoran near Williamsport and W. G. Wilder in Jackson township. Milton H. Renick at Darbyville plans a rotation of alfalfa-grass pasture in four sections of a 36-acre field.

Eleven cooperators of the soil conservation district who are trying Marietta timothy in 1947 recently had their timothy plots spotted on a farm map prepared by the district. Followup observations are to be made this year and results made known. The same procedure is being followed in the cases of five men who seeded the new Ellsberry bromegrass last Spring.

Additional new cooperators with the soil conservation district who enrolled during January are: Perry Fausnaugh and Oscar L. Lower of Madison township; Glen Hay of Walnut township and J. Austin Dowden of Wayne township.

If the webbing on the electric iron cord starts to fray, a temporary repair measure is to apply clear nail polish over the worn spot. Replace the cord with a new one for safety as soon as possible.

DO NOT BLAME YOUR MILKMAN

Yellow Color Of Milk Fades During Winter Without Green Feed

Don't blame the milkman for color change in milk!

Several local housewives have complained recently about the color of the milk their milkman is leaving them. This is a true observation and from now until the pasture season, the yellow color of milk will become weaker and weaker, according to L. A. Best, Pickaway County Agricultural Agent.

This should be no source of complaint to the milkman, for it is nothing but a reflection of the quality of the roughage fed to the cows producing the milk.

The yellow color in milk is due to a yellow pigment called carotene, which originates in the feed consumed. Green feed, hay-crop silage, corn silage and well made hay are the common sources of carotene for dairy cows in winter. During the pasture season, maximum amounts of carotene are consumed, but if high quality hays and silage are fed liberally during the winter months it is possible to keep the yellow color of milk at a fairly high concentration, experts explain.

Dairy cattle breeds vary in their ability to pass on the carotene they consume into the milk they produce, but the milk that is delivered to most homes, unless of a special grade, is from a mixed supply in which the change in color may be apparent.

Until much greater production and storage of high quality roughages for winter feeding comes about, this color variation in market milk will continue to exist.

SAVINGS BOND SALE IN COUNTY $654,447 IN '46

Sales of U. S. Savings bonds during 1946 in Pickaway county totaled $654,447, it was announced Monday by Percy W. Brown, Cleveland, state chairman for the Ohio savings bond division of the U. S. Treasury Department.

His announcement said the state-wide sale in 1946 totaled $464,500,000 as compared with $773,300,000 in 1945. He said that Ohio, the fifth state in population, ranks, fifth in purchase of bonds last year.

More and more farmers are adopting improved harvesting and storage procedures, for such practices not only affect the quality of the milk produced but increases the efficiency of production.

EXIT LORD PETER

DOROTHY Sayers says that she will write no more mystery stories. Readers will miss Lord Peter Wimsey, homely and awkward, but humorous and un-baffled by any crime. He has this human touch which sets him apart from many sleuths: a profound dislike for his sister-in-law.

Of late Miss Sayers' interest in the detective story seems to have been slipping. The much-admired "Gaudy Night" was primarily a story of Oxford University, with the thinnest possible thread of mystery running through. "Busman's Holiday" was on the same order. The war has apparently intensified Miss Sayers' taste for religious writing, and Lord Peter Wimsey may delight readers no more.

Of course she might change her mind. Conan Doyle killed off Sherlock Holmes, only to have millions of readers compel his revival. Miss Sayers readers hope Lord Peter has merely been on vacation, but they think it is now high time he got to work again. All together now, "We want Peter Wimsey!"

EUROPE AND HOLLYWOOD

AMERICAN movies, with their technical perfection, their beauty of costume and setting, their ideals of luxury and seeming laxity of morals, are feared by European political leaders. This fact was brought out by William Benton, Assistant Secretary of State, in a speech before a meeting of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations.

Benton cites the fact that the movies are skillfully constructed to appeal to the masses, and thus exercise a wide influence in all parts of the world. He says European intellectuals are horrified when they hear their children "speaking English with an American accent, using American slang, and discussing love, divorce and murder in Hollywood epigrams."

The speaker might have added that intelligent Americans are also horrified at these developments in their children, and that the remedy may lie in providing counter-attractions on a higher level to exercise a stronger influence. That is really a problem worthy of our best minds.

LONELY OR LONESOME

FOR those with many friends, for him upon whom life heaps smothering responsibilities and crowding personal contests, loneliness is a luxury. For those others whose families have faded away, those shy ones who are never noticed, those with barren inner lives, for them loneliness means lonesomeness.

And no outsider can do very much about changing gaunt lonesomeness into glorious loneliness. "Right loneliness" a great teacher called it—the solitude from which comes strength and inspiration.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27—Unions and management agreed a few days back the trend of this nation is toward socialism—a rather startling agreement—although no notice was paid it. Perhaps one reason this cheerless foreboding drew bare public mention was that AFL's Bill Green did not send around a copy of his speech to the publicists as usually he does. What he said was: Toryism is driving unions to the left; the threatened union reform legislation is being pressed as a stratagem of the Tories to destroy the unions. Pointing to the rise of union socialist government in England, Green asked: "do you doubt that the same thing could happen here? Is it inconceivable that union workers might be driven to the same course under similar provocation?"

This sparingly reported speech was made to the conference of mayors at which President Wilson of General Motors said, in a political-economic analysis, which should be read by all students of the subject in full: "The attack on profits is really an attempt to substitute state socialism or communism for our free competitive and capitalistic system." He claimed union leftists were forcing us toward a system imported from east of the Rhine, or even from England, installing the state as God and government.

Here was considerable agreement as to the facts. They both say the unions are forcing us to the political and economic bankruptcy of the backward nations. Green excuses this by blaming it on what he calls Toryism (a word imported from England.) Furthermore, both seem agreed neither wants to go where we are being pushed.

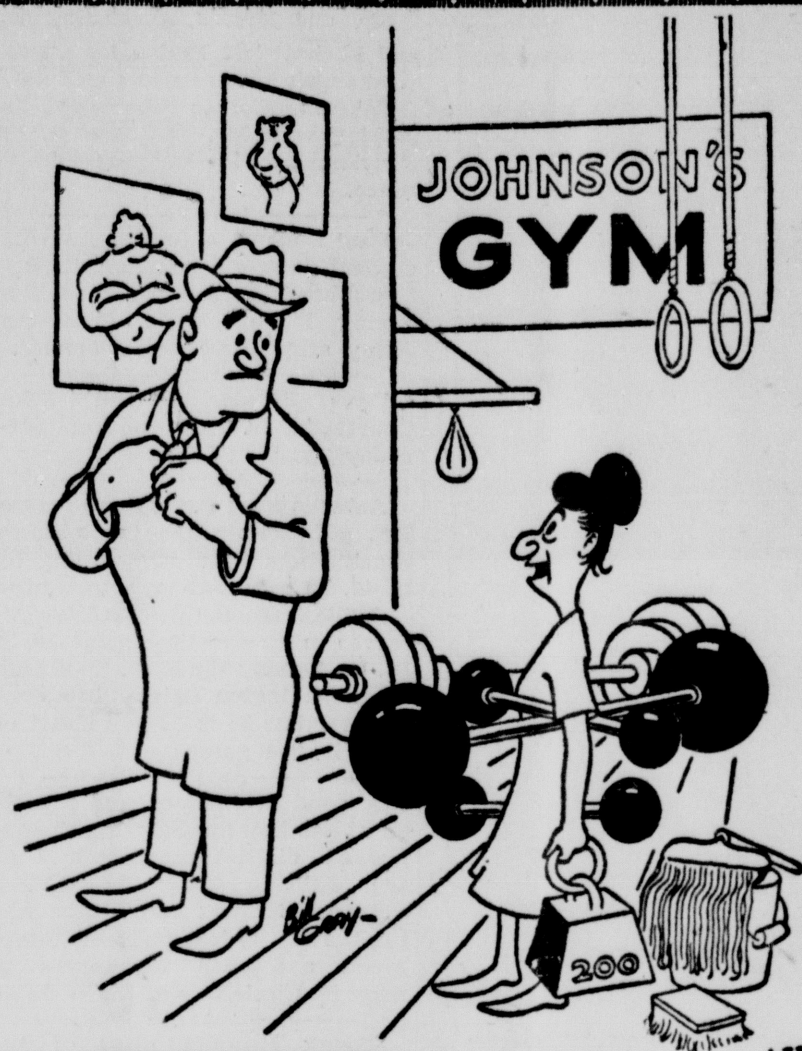

Behind this, of course, is Green's desire to threaten management with socialism so it will ease down in current dominant demands for union reform. Similarly management wants to threaten socialism to scare labor into a cooperative peace for production. But if they are talking in this way for propaganda purposes, both are also telling the truth.

What neither Green nor Wilson reported was that socialism has decayed and been corrupted by communism throughout the world in the past few months. The trend of socialism, I would say, is toward Communism, or a more accurate way to put it is that the Communists are using the socialists for their own revolutionary advantage. This was not true earlier in the post-war era. The Socialists knew and hated the communists better than we Democrats. Since then the socialists have become mere dupes for the Communists in France, delivering the national defense ministry of that nation to the Communists in political exchange for the premiership to which the Socialists had no right whatsoever because they were the single defeated party which lost ground and was assigned to a small minority by the people in the last election.

In Britain, union socialism has taken the bankruptcy of that nation into a union receivership, which cannot even produce enough goods to sustain itself. Everyone knows about the coal shortage situation, but few realize the same condition applies to other British goods and services. Coal is the biggest natural product of Britain, used for export to acquire import food. Lately Britain has not been able to produce enough coal to keep itself warm and going in Winter, but the government had

New Help for Epileptics

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

EPILEPSY is one of the most distressing of ailments because it involves loss of consciousness and, in many cases, major convulsions. Though it is one of the oldest of recognized diseases, we know neither its cause nor its cure.

However, the discovery of new drugs has made it possible to control attacks to a degree never dreamed of in earlier days, thus permitting many patients to become useful members of society. In this connection it should not be forgotten that epilepsy attacks the gifted as well as the poorly endowed, and that many brilliant men of history are reputed to have been subject to epileptic seizures.

An Adequate Dosage

According to Dr. H. Houston Merritt of Columbia University, New York City, the success in treatment depends on giving an adequate dosage of these drugs together with general physical care and proper mental guidance.

There are three types of epileptic seizures. The first type is known as grand mal. In it there are loss of consciousness and convulsions for a varying time. The second type is petit mal. In it there is only loss of consciousness for a few seconds at a time. The third type is known as psychomotor attacks in which there is no loss of consciousness.

For grand mal attacks which occur at infrequent intervals, the nerve quieting drug called phenobarbital is usually administered.

The main objection to this drug is that it makes the patient sleepy. A drug known as dilantin sodium is valuable in both the psychomotor and the grand mal attacks.

A Small Dose

Dilantin sodium is given in a small dose at first and the amount gradually increased, if necessary, of course only under the doctor's direction. Such reactions as nervousness, sleeplessness, sickness to the stomach and skin inflammation may occur and, if so, the amount of the drug may have to be reduced or it may have to be discontinued altogether.

Bromides are occasionally effective in treating epilepsy when other medicines fail. Skin rashes and mental dullness may develop if too large a dose is used. Dilantin sodium may be given together with phenobarbital or the bromides when it does not seem to work by itself.

A new drug known as tridione gives encouraging results in petit mal and psychomotor attacks. If the use of the drug causes a skin rash or eye symptoms such as irritation of the eyes by light, its use must be discontinued.

The exact type of epilepsy present may be determined by using an instrument which shows the brain waves. A different pattern of waves occurs in each of the various forms of epilepsy. Once a definite diagnosis is made treatment with the proper drugs can be carried out.

SYNOPSIS

When Cliff Bogard accepted the U. S. Rubber Division's dangerous assignment of opening up virgin rubber plantations in New Dixie, South America, he was surprised to find that the person Washington sent down to aid him in getting the option was Janet Norman, a tall, bronze-haired beauty. However, she knew the territory, having been brought up there by her late father, beloved doctor of the community. New Dixie, a kind of feudal colony resulting from the migration of Americans before the Civil War, disliked outside interference, as did their enemies, the Blacklanders, a group of rebellious natives. Cliff is angered when Janet insists they start immediately for New Dixie, despite the fact that only three weeks before the authorities had refused Cliff the option and ordered him to leave. Lack of gas forces their plane to land near the jungle home of elderly Wade Carroll, whose occupation is capturing wild animals for zoos. Surprised and pleased to see Janet again, he warns them that the Blacklanders are in the vicinity. No one knows the identity of their new leader, but the Dixie vaqueros have sworn to capture him and Vicente, his chief lieutenant. Lili, attractive young native girl whom Wade adopted when her parents died, has known the latter since childhood. Wade offers to accompany them to New Dixie, and while he prepares horses for the journey, Lili takes Cliff to see the menagerie. While there Vicente rides out of the jungle and angrily warns Cliff to leave. When he refuses, Vicente threatens him with immediate capture, but later changes his tune following a talk with Janet. However, before leaving, he warns them that even though they succeed in getting the option, they'll never take rubber out of the Blacklands. Cliff, anxious to get started, goes down to the plane for his knapsack.

CHAPTER SIX

THE LITTLE hunter grinned happily. "Vicente kinda changed his tune when he found out you was Dr. Norman's girl. It's like I always say—people stood around for the doctor when he was alive." He stopped, and his smile vanished. "Why you're shakin', Miss Janet?"

Unsteadily she answered, "I'm frightened."

He laid a wrinkled hand on her arm. "There ain't nothin' to be scared of now. Vicente's gone."

"It's not Vicente I'm afraid of—it's Mr. Bogard. I'm supposed to help him get his rubber out of the Blacklands. That's why I'm here."

"Help him? That's Wade's voice, mildly incredulous. "Why, you never saw the Blacklands, did you?"

"Never. But in Washington they thought I did. It was the only way I could get a passport to come back. I even wrote a letter telling Mr. Bogard to put himself in my hands, and I signed it with the name of the rubber chief." As if astonished at her own selfishness, she added, "That's forgery, Wade."

"It sure is. But why did you do it?"

"I had to come here. Don't ask me why—I just had to, and if Mr. Bogard finds out, I'll have to go back."

"Even if he don't find out, Claribel's almost sure to kick him out again. Then what happens to you?"

"I'll have to go with him." Suddenly her two hands clenched.

"And I won't go. I want to stay here more than anything in the world. I have to stay."

Wade's eyes were soft with sympathy. "It ain't goin' to be very easy for you to stay here since your father's gone. Things'll be different."

Her lip trembled. "I know what you're trying to say. You haven't much confidence in me. I haven't much in myself."

"It ain't so much that. It's just that Dr. Norman always sorta shielded you. And besides, Clari-bel don't like you—she never liked you since her nephew followed you back to the States."

Janet tried, not too successfully, to smile. "What makes it worse, he doesn't like me either."

"Who?"

"Mr. Bogard. He's almost sure I'm a humbug."

Helplessly Wade cleared his throat. "If there's anything I can do—anything at all—you just tell me."

She saw the sympathy in his faded, kindly eyes, and for an instant her own eyes lost their hunted look. "Thanks, old friend."

Then with an effort at calmness she asked, "Did Father ever talk to you about this Vicente?"

"I wouldn't remember. But I do remember that Vicente was in our party when we found where your father camped the night he drowned. Fact is, Vicente found it. Hammock, instruments—everything was there after the flood passed."

Once again he saw the shadow of fear cloud her face.

"I don't understand what it's all about, Miss Janet," he said unhappily, "but if there's anything I can do—anything at all—" He stopped, for Cliff had entered the clearing.

Obviously anxious to get Cliff off his hands, Wade hurried out after the horses, and ten minutes later they started through the dripping jungle. Janet and Cliff mounted on two sturdy ponies.

Wade himself leading a pack-horse bearing their bags. Steadily the trail rose from the valley, while stunted oak began taking the place of palms, and soon they were riding through open patches of grass-land, where the footing was firmer and the air fresher; jungle had given way to a land of eternal spring.

Once Janet reined in her horse and beckoned to Cliff. "Let me show you something," she said, and leaving the main trail, led him out along a rocky ridge.

He gave an involuntary exclamation of surprise. They were on the peak of a sheer promontory, and thousands of feet below them, like a shining ribbon, the river flowed slow and deep between high jungle banks, then broke into a series of rapids. To the north, above the rapids, the country opened up into a wide, fertile valley, shrouded in mist too thick to penetrate.

"Up there," Janet said, "are your Blacklands," and Cliff knew that somewhere in that misty valley to the north lay the famous plantations he had come so far to see.

A lonely, sky-filled place. From that dizzy height the world lay spread out like a great colored map, the lush, velvety green of the jungle fading back to a purple haze, and Cliff could hear the low moaning of the wind beneath him.

"It's lovely, isn't it?" Janet exclaimed. "It was here Father always liked to stop and rest."

Cliff pointed down to a spot where, just below the rapids, stood a low, squat building on the river bank. "What's that?" he asked.

Janet shook her head, and it was Wade who answered. "That's the warehouse the other rubber fellow built. And over there is the hangar Pablo uses for his plane. There's a trail all along the river—you can't see it from here—it's been worn smooth and flat by the Indians for nobody knows how long. Well, we better be gettin' along. The sun's kinda low."

Then abruptly Wade leaned forward in his saddle and pointed almost directly down. Dwarfed to toys by distance, a group of horsemen was fording the stream.

"Vicente's riders." The hunter wiped his shining forehead with a blue handkerchief the size of a small tablecloth. "They're up to something—they haven't been down this far in years."

Cliff's eyes followed the little cavalcade until it crossed the river, then he asked, "Why did Vicente make me promise to keep mum about his being here?"

Wade chuckled. "I guess he figured that if the New Dixie vaqueros found out he was in the valley they might try to catch him. The vaqueros been wantin' to lay hands on Vicente for some time."

For another mile they rode steadily, making better progress over the level trail, until at a turn they emerged suddenly upon a rolling plateau, and Cliff looked up with a thrill of glad surprise—just ahead New Dixie lay.

Bathed in late afternoon sunlight, it might have been a village in the States. Over a hundred houses, freshly kept and gleaming white, dotted the plateau, each cottage fronted by cool, fresh lawns, and trim picket fences.

Lofty trees, that looked like elms, shaded the streets, and the smoke of a hundred chimneys rose straight up, pencil-thin on the still air. Once, softened by distance, came the sound of a dog barking.

To Cliff it was as if a segment of the old South had been transplanted bodily to this peaceful, sunstrewn upland. The jungle seemed incredibly far away, and marauding bands a fantastic dream.

Behind the village, and a short distance above it, stood a house larger than the rest, with tall white pillars and spacious lawns, and at sight of it Cliff felt the quickened beat of his heart—in the center of the lawn floated an American flag.

Suddenly elated, he stood up in his stirrups. "It's like being back in the States!"

"That's Clari-bel's house," Wade said. He reined in his horse. "You all won't need me no longer. Clari-bel and me don't sing in none too close harmony these days, so I'll be gettin' along." He shook hands, but his eyes lingered on the girl's face. "If there's anything, anything at all—" he murmured, and turned down the trail.

Foresee Congress Battle Over | Court's Decision in Mine Case National Defense Expenditures | May Rest With Chief Justice

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—A battle is shaping up in Congress over national defense expenditures. But what is not generally realized is that a good part of the fight will be to raise President Truman's budget figures.

If defense outlays are held down to the $11,256,000,000, which the president recommended, it will be a pretty fair compromise and all hands can call it a day.

The fight, of course, will be over appropriations. Mr. Truman asked Congress to vote an additional $10,041,000,000 for national defense. If Congress votes that much, the Army and Navy can spend $11,256,000,000. If Congress votes less, the armed services cannot spend that much.

Naturally, there is a chunk of holdover money, and this accounts for the difference. Actually, the president did some pretty mean budget-cutting before he drew up his figures. He trimmed the Army's request by $1,500,000,000 and the Navy's by $2,000,000,000.

There was a lot of walling over the president's own axe-swinging job. Top Army and Navy officials and the War and Navy secretaries pleaded eloquently. But the president was adamant.

Now Congress will hear the walls when it President Truman knuckles down to the budget-preparation job. It will be under such pressure to raise the president's recommendations that there is a good prospect it will decide to let well enough alone and accept them.

SOME WASHINGTON LEGAL EXPERTS believe that Chief Justice Fred Vinson may hold the key to the supreme court's decision in the contempt case against John L. Lewis.

These attorneys see Justices Black, Murphy, Douglas and Rutledge lined up for the miners, and Justices Reed, Frankfurter, Burton and Jackson arrayed against Lewis.

Such a line-up would leave Vinson with the all-important deciding vote.

One coal industry attorney expressed the opinion that the $3,510,000 fine levied against Lewis and the UMW by the lower court will be moderated considerably.

He contended that Lewis certainly was in contempt of the district court injunction against the coal walkout, but expressed belief that the supreme court would find mitigating circumstances in his disobedience.

For example, the high tribunal might hold that the injunction was illegal, as Lewis argues, under the Norris-LaGuardia act.

AFFABLE, HARD-HITTING Senator Kenneth Wherry (R) of Nebraska agreed that the organization meeting of the Senate appropriations committee fell on one of his "bad days."

Wherry was perhaps the leading critic of the state department in the old Congress and fervently hoped he would draw the chairmanship of the state, commerce and justice subcommittee on appropriations.

But the appropriations committee assigned chairmanships by seniority and Senator Joseph H. Ball (R) of Minnesota slightly outranked Wherry. That was the first blow.

Wherry could have had the Navy chairmanship, but he overheard Senator Chan Gurney (R) of South Dakota, chairman of the armed services committee, remark that it would be a good idea to give it to Senator Leverett Saltonstall (R) of Massachusetts.

Wherry decided that Saltonstall, rich with naval knowledge and traditions, was a good man to bow to. He passed up the Navy spot and said he would take the interior department chairmanship.

He thought he had everyone except himself completely happy until Senator Guy Cordon (R) of Oregon began to needle him for not having taken the Navy chairmanship. Cordon, it developed, wanted interior just as badly as Wherry originally had wanted to be in charge of state department hearings.

EXIT LORD PETER
DOROTHY Sayers says that she will write no more mystery stories. Readers will miss Lord Peter Wimsey, homely and awkward, but humorous and un-baffled by any crime. He has this human touch which sets him apart from many sleuths: a profound dislike for his sister-in-law.
Of late Miss Sayers' interest in the detective story seems to have been slipping. The much-admired "Gaudy Night" was primarily a story of Oxford University, with the thinnest possible thread of mystery running through. "Busman's Holiday" was on the same order. The war has apparently intensified Miss Sayers' taste for religious writing, and Lord Peter Wimsey may delight readers no more.
Of course she might change her mind. Conan Doyle killed off Sherlock Holmes, only to have millions of readers compel his revival. Miss Sayers readers hope Lord Peter has merely been on vacation, but they think it is now high time he got to work again. All together now, "We want Peter Wimsey!"

EUROPE AND HOLLYWOOD
AMERICAN movies, with their technical perfection, their beauty of costume and setting, their ideals of luxury and seeming laxity of morals, are feared by European political leaders. This fact was brought out by William Benton, Assistant Secretary of State, in a speech before a meeting of the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations.
Benton cites the fact that the movies are skillfully constructed to appeal to the masses, and thus exercise a wide influence in all parts of the world. He says European intellectuals are horrified when they hear their children "speaking English with an American accent, using American slang, and discussing love, divorce and murder in Hollywood epigrams."
The speaker might have added that intelligent Americans are also horrified at these developments in their children, and that the remedy may lie in providing counter-attractions on a higher level to exercise a stronger influence. That is really a problem worthy of our best minds.

LONELY OR LONESOME
FOR those with many friends, for him upon whom life heaps smothering responsibilities and crowding personal contests, loneliness is a luxury. For those others whose families have faded away, those shy ones who are never noticed, those with barren inner lives, for them loneliness means lonesomeness.
And no outsider can do very much about changing gaunt lonesomeness into glorious loneliness. "Right loneliness" a great teacher called it—the solitude from which comes strength and inspiration.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27—Unions and management agreed a few days back the trend of this nation is toward socialism—a rather startling agreement—although no notice was paid it. Perhaps one reason this cheerless foreboding drew bare public mention was that AFL's Bill Green did not send around a copy of his speech to the publicists as usually he does. What he said was: Toryism is driving unions to the left; the threatened union reform legislation is being pressed as a strategem of the Tories to destroy the unions. Pointing to the rise of union socialist government in England, Green asked: "do you doubt that the same thing could happen here? Is it inconceivable that union workers might be driven to the same course under similar provocation?"

This sparingly reported speech was made to the conference of mayors at which President Wilson of General Motors said, in a political-economic analysis, which should be read by all students of the subject in full: "The attack on profits is really an attempt to substitute state socialism or communism for our free competitive and capitalistic system." He claimed union leftists were forcing us toward a system imported from east of the Rhine, or even from England, installing the state as God and government.

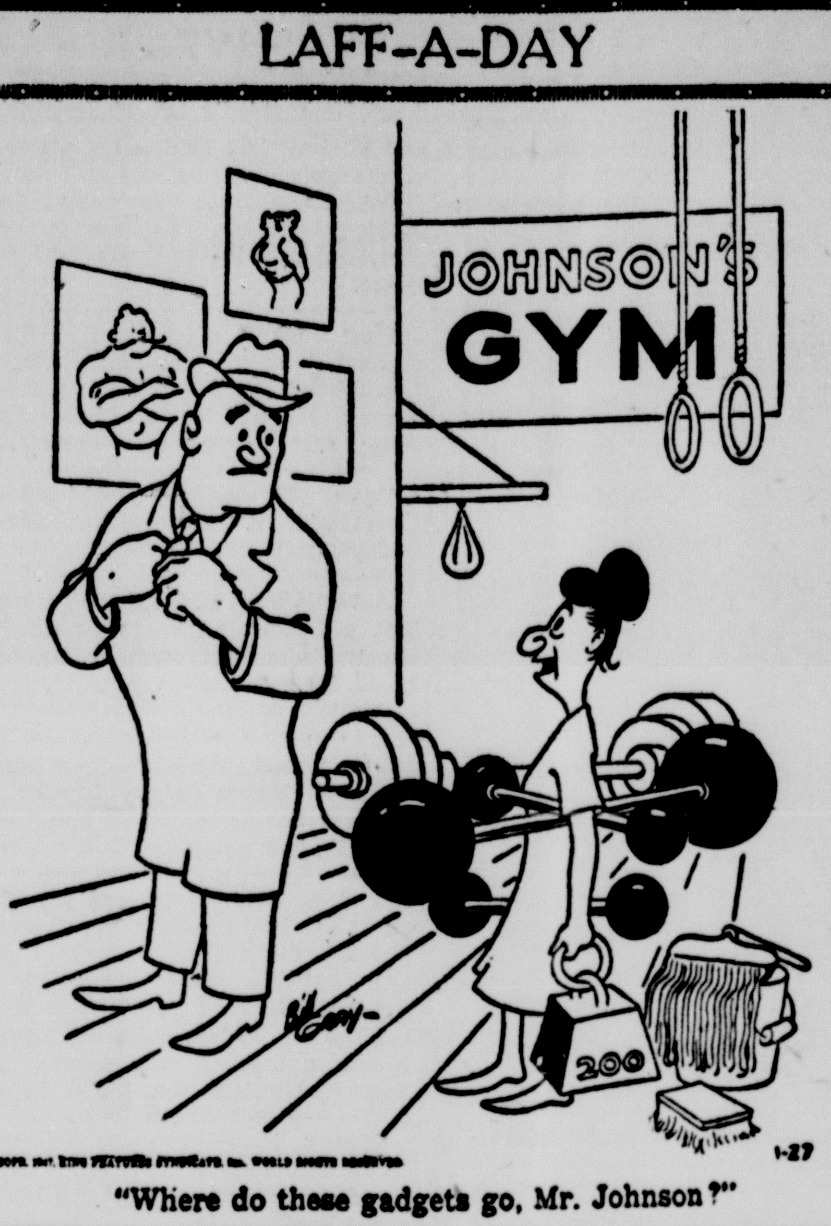

Here was considerable agreement as to the facts. They both say the unions are forcing us to the political and economic bankruptcy of the backward nations. Green excuses this by blaming it on what he calls Toryism (a word imported from England.) Furthermore, both seem agreed neither wants to go where we are being pushed.

Behind this, of course, is Green's desire to threaten management with socialism so it will ease down in current dominant demands for union reform. Similarly management wants to threaten socialism to scare labor into a cooperative peace for production. But if they are talking in this way for propaganda purposes, both are also telling the truth.

What neither Green nor Wilson reported was that socialism has decayed and been corrupted by communism throughout the world in the past few months. The trend of socialism, I would say, is toward Communism, or a more accurate way to put it is that the Communists are using the socialists for their own revolutionary advantage. This was not true earlier in the post-war era. The Socialists knew and hated the communists better than we Democrats. Since then the socialists have become mere dupes for the Communists in France, delivering the national defense ministry of that nation to the Communists in political exchange for the premiership to which the Socialists had no right whatsoever because they were the single defeated party which lost ground and was assigned to a small minority by the people in the last election.

In Britain, union socialism has taken the bankruptcy of that nation into a union receivership, which cannot even produce enough goods to sustain itself. Everyone knows about the coal shortage situation, but few realize the same condition applies to other British goods and services. Coal is the biggest natural product of Britain, used for export to acquire import food. Lately Britain has not been able to produce enough coal to keep itself warm and going in Winter, but the government had

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.
EPILEPSY is one of the most distressing of ailments because it involves loss of consciousness and, in many cases, major convulsions. Though it is one of the oldest of recognized diseases, we know neither its cause nor its cure.
However, the discovery of new drugs has made it possible to control attacks to a degree never dreamed of in earlier days, thus permitting many patients to become useful members of society.
In this connection it should not be forgotten that epilepsy attacks the gifted as well as the poorly endowed and that many brilliant men of history are reputed to have been subject to epileptic seizures.
An Adequate Dosage
According to Dr. H. Houston Merritt of Columbia University, New York City, the success in treatment depends on giving an adequate dosage of these drugs together with general physical care and proper mental guidance.
There are three types of epileptic seizures. The first type is known as grand mal. In it there are loss of consciousness and convulsions for a varying time. The second type is petit mal. In it there is only loss of consciousness for a few seconds at a time. The third type is known as psychomotor attacks in which there is no loss of consciousness.
For grand mal attacks which occur at infrequent intervals, the nerve quieting drug called phenobarbital is usually administered. The main objection to this drug is that it makes the patient sleepy. A drug known as dilantin sodium is valuable in both the psychomotor and the grand mal attacks.
A Small Dose
Dilantin sodium is given in a small dose at first and the amount gradually increased, if necessary, of course only under the doctor's direction. Such reactions as nervousness, sleeplessness, sickness to the stomach and skin inflammation may occur and, if so, the amount of the drug may have to be reduced or it may have to be discontinued altogether.
Bromides are occasionally effective in treating epilepsy when other medicines fail. Skin rashes and mental dullness may develop if too large a dose is used. Dilantin sodium may be given together with phenobarbital or the bromides when it does not seem to work by itself.
A new drug known as tridione gives encouraging results in petit mal and psychomotor attacks. If the use of the drug causes a skin rash or eye symptoms such as irritation of the eyes by light, its use must be discontinued.
The exact type of epilepsy present may be determined by using an instrument which shows the brain waves. A different pattern of waves occurs in each of the various forms of epilepsy. Once a definite diagnosis is made treatment with the proper drugs can be carried out.

SYNOPSIS
When Cliff Bogard accepted the U. S. Rubber Division's dangerous assignment of opening up virgin rubber plantations in New Dixie, South America, he was surprised to find that the person Washington sent down to aid him in getting the option was Janet Norman, a tall, bronze-haired beauty. However, she knew the territory, having been brought up there by her late father, beloved doctor of the community. New Dixie, a kind of feudal colony resulting from the migration of Americans before the Civil War, disliked outside interference, so did their enemies, the Blacklanders, a group of rebellious natives. Cliff is angered when Janet insists they start immediately for New Dixie, despite the fact that only three weeks before the authorities there had refused Cliff an option and ordered him to leave. Lack of gas forces their plane to land near the jungle home of elderly Wade Carroll, whose occupation is capturing wild animals for zoos. Surprised and pleased to see Janet again, he warns them that the Blacklanders are in the vicinity. No one knows the identity of their new leader, but the Dixie vaqueros have sworn to capture him and Vicente, his chief lieutenant. Lili, attractive young native girl whom Wade adopted when her parents died, has known the latter since childhood. Wade offers to accompany them to New Dixie, and while he prepares horses for the journey, Lili takes Cliff to see the menagerie. While there Vicente rides out of the jungle and angrily warns Cliff to leave. When he refuses, Vicente threatens him with immediate capture, but later changes his tune following a talk with Janet. However, before leaving, he warns them that even though they succeed in getting the option, they'll never take Vicente out of the Blacklands. Cliff, anxious to get started, goes down to the plane for his knapsack.
CHAPTER SIX
THE LITTLE hunter grinned happily. "Vicente kinda changed his tune when he found out you was Dr. Norman's girl. It's like I always say—people stood around for the doctor when he was alive." He stopped, and his smile vanished. "Why you're shakin', Miss Janet!"
Unsteadily she answered, "I'm frightened."
He laid a wrinkled hand on her arm. "There ain't nothin' to be scared of now, Vicente's gone."
"It's not Vicente I'm afraid of," it's Mr. Bogard. I'm supposed to help him get his rubber out of the Blacklands. That's why I'm here."
"Help him!" Wade's voice was mildly incredulous. "Why, you never saw the Blacklands, did you?"
"Never. But in Washington they thought I did. It was the only way I could get a passport to come back. I even wrote a letter telling Mr. Bogard to put himself in my hands, and I signed it with the name of the rubber chief." As if astonished at her own sinfulness, she added, "That's forgery, Wade."
"It sure is. But why did you do it?"
"I had to come here. Don't ask me why—I just had to, and if Mr. Bogard finds out, I'll have to go back."
"Even if he don't find out, Clari-bell's almost sure to kick him out again. Then what happens to you?"
"I'll have to go with him." Suddenly her two hands clenched.
"And I won't go. I want to stay here more than anything in the world. I have to stay."
Wade's eyes were soft with sympathy. "It ain't goin' to be very easy for you to stay here since your father's gone. Things'll be different."
Her lip trembled. "I know what you're trying to say. You haven't much confidence in me. I haven't much in myself."
"It ain't so much that. It's just that Dr. Norman always sorta shielded you. And besides, Clari-bell don't like you—she never liked you since her nephew followed you back to the States."
Janet tried, not too successfully, to smile. "What makes it worse, he doesn't like me either."
"Who?"
"Mr. Bogard. He's almost sure I'm a humbug."
Helplessly Wade cleared his throat. "If there's anything I can do—anything at all—you just tell me."
She saw the sympathy in his faded, kindly eyes, and for an instant her own eyes lost their hunted look. "Thanks, old friend." Then with an effort at calmness she asked, "Did Father ever talk to you about this Vicente?"
"I wouldn't remember. But I do remember that Vicente was in our party when we found where your father camped the night he drowned. Fact is, Vicente found it. Hammock, instruments—everything was there after the flood passed."
Once again he saw the shadow of fear cloud her face.
"I don't understand what it's all about, Miss Janet," he said unhappily, "but if there's anything I can do—anything at all—He stopped, for Cliff had entered the clearing.
Obviously anxious to get Cliff off his hands, Wade hurried out after the horses, and ten minutes later they started through the dripping jungle. Janet and Cliff mounted on two sturdy ponies. Wade himself leading a pack-horse bearing their bags. Steadily the trail rose from the valley, while stunted oak began taking the place of palms, and soon they were riding through open patches of grassland, where the footing was firmer and the air fresher; jungle had given way to a land of eternal spring.
Once Janet reined in her horse and beckoned to Cliff. "Let me show you something," she said, and leaving the main trail, led him out along a rocky ridge.
He gave an involuntary exclamation of surprise. They were on the peak of a sheer promontory, and thousands of feet below them, like a shirring ribbon, the river flowed slow and deep between high jungle banks, then broke into a series of rapids. To the north, above the rapids, the country opened up into a wide, fertile valley, shrouded in mist too thick to penetrate.
"Up there," Janet said, "are your Blacklands," and Cliff knew that somewhere in that misty valley to the north lay the famous plantations he had come so far to see.
A lonely, sky-filled place. From that dizzy height the world lay spread out like a great colored

Dance, Dinner, Party Highlight Elks Meeting

Circleville Wives Are Hostesses At District Event

Circleville Elks lodge number 77, was selected to be hosts for the quarterly meeting of the south-central district, which was held Saturday and Sunday in the home of the local chapter. This was a gala event for the local lodge, as it was the first time in the history of the club, that it had been presented with such an honor.

Elks from 14 lodges and officers of the state organization were present for the Saturday and Sunday open-house.

The festivities opened with registration of all members and ladies Saturday at 6 p. m. which was followed by a dance in the club ball room. Attending the two day south central district meeting were members of Elks' lodges from Athens, Chillicothe, Columbus, Gallopolis, Ironton, Lancaster, Nelsonville, Newark, New Lexington, Logan, Portsmouth, Marysville and Jackson.

Bill Vaughn's orchestra from Columbus, furnished music for the dance held Saturday evening, with more than 400 members and guests present for the gay affair. A special show was put on by members of the orchestra, which consisted of clever pantomimes, and jokes, interspersed with musical interpretations. Sheldon Powell led a number of circle dances, and a novel dance arrangement, which he calls his, "broom partner dance". The dance was the highlight of the two day party. The happy carefree crowd made the dance a real success. Frocks worn by the ladies, formed a setting of varied colors which were of vivid and brilliant hues.

Paul H. Betz, district chairman, appointed wives of officers, in the local lodge to serve as hostesses for the occasion. Mrs. Betz headed the hospitality committee. She was assisted by Mrs. N. E. Reichelderfer, Mrs. Leland E. Pontious, Mrs. D. D. Henkle, Mrs. Russell Valentine, Mrs. Monroe J. Valentine, Mrs. Clydus Fausnaugh, Mrs. Edwin Plum, Mrs. William D. Radcliff and Mrs. William A. Goodchild.

Sunday afternoon, 11 tables of contract progressive bridge, three tables of euchre, and two tables of auction bridge were in progress. Bowls of bronze and white snappers, jonquils and other small spring flowers were placed on mantles and tables throughout the lounge rooms. Mrs. Reichelderfer served as chairman for the card party for the ladies. At the conclusion of the games and social afternoon, prizes were presented to those having high scores. Mrs. N. B. Woods, Jackson, Mrs. Luther Bower, Mrs. Pontious and Mrs. Fred Roundhouse were winners in the bridge game. Euchre winners were, Mrs. Russell Valentine and Mrs. George Dennis, Ashville. Door prizes were won by Mrs. Charles Goeller and Mrs. Allen Thornton.

Ralph Stone, Veterans administrator of Ohio, Kentucky and Michigan, of Conneaut, was guest speaker at the session for the men of the club Sunday afternoon. District officers, in charge of the meeting, presented short addresses to the assembly. Included in the group were Mr. Betz, district chairman, M. V. Slavins, vice-chairman, Jackson, W. F. Kessler, secretary-treasurer, Lancaster, W. B. Doblin, treasurer, Jackson, C. S. Shirley, member of the executive committee, Athens, C. F. Mossholder, Newark, E. Sheldon Powell, Nelsonville and C. B. Cherler, Lancaster.

State officers that participated were, J. A. Kleinfeller, vice-president, Bucyrus, Nelson E. W. Stuart, third-vice-president, Cleveland, E. Gene Fournace, secretary, Newark, Walter Beer, visitation committee, Lima, James Lynch, trustee, Chillicothe, and Major Edward T. Fogo, Tyler, Wellsville.

Robert Dunkle, past state president, Chillicothe, Charles Schmidt, Columbus, and James Cooper, Newark.

Dinner was served in the club's recreation rooms, for more than 500 guests. Jimmie Carpenter prepared and served his famous roast beef dinner, with all the trimmings. Clydus Fausnaugh, chairman of the house committee, with his co-workers, assisted "Jimmie" in serving the guests. Frank Sussa entertained the crowd with accordion music as they were seated.

Girl Scout Field Worker Here For Three-Day Stay

Miss Margaret Moogan, national Girl Scout field staff member and adviser to local Girl Scout organizations in Ohio, West Virginia, and Kentucky, will be in Circleville Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Mrs. Bernard W. Young, commissioner of the Circleville and Pickaway Girl Scout association, announced Monday.

While in Circleville Miss Moogan is scheduled to address members of the Girl Scout association at their annual meeting, Tuesday at 8 p. m. at headquarters and to attend the tea given by the council immediately following.

Miss Moogan served as executive-secretary in Olympia, Washington, and was program director for the Cincinnati Girl Scouts. She is especially equipped by her training, to work with leaders in developing programs within a troop and in coordinating it with the needs of the individual community.

On this, her first visit to Circleville since 1944 when she helped form the present Girl Scout organization, Miss Moogan will be the house guest of Mrs. Ralph Curtin during her stay.

Many groups are planning to confer with Miss Moogan as to their particular problems and duties in scouting. Monday she will meet with Mrs. Young and Mrs. Tom Renick, Deputy Commissioner. In the afternoon she will attend the weekly meeting of troop 11 at headquarters. In the evening she will be a dinner guest of Miss Ruth Stout with Mrs. Young and Mrs. Curtin. Attendance contest of Washington township grange members, was brought to a close, Saturday evening, with a banquet served at 7:30 p. m. in the township school building. Eighty-five guests were seated at the long tables for the dinner. The tables were decorated in a color scheme of white and green, and lighted by tall white tapers.

Miss Dorothy Glick presented a program of dinner music. The dinner was prepared and served by men members of the grange, who were losers in the attendance contest. Following the dinner the men in a tribute to the ladies sang the song, "Let Me Call You Sweetheart."

Turney Glick, master of ceremonies, presented James Mowery, who gave several musical readings. Thurman Miller, Circleville's magician, proved to the group with his interesting feats of magic, that the hand is quicker than the eye. Mr. Glick, county deputy, outlined grange activities planned for the state of Ohio in the coming year.

The program was brought to a close by Loring Leist, master, who outlined the local grange program for 1947. Remainder of the evening was spent informally.

Next regular meeting will be Friday, February 14. The program to be presented at that session will be under the direction of the February committee. Miss Nellie Bolender will be chairman. She will be assisted by John Bolender, Harry Briggs, Mrs. Vaughn Crites, Mrs. C. E. Helvering, Mrs. G. M. Newton and Mr. and Mrs. Larry Best. Refreshments will be served by officers of the grange.

Dance, Dinner, Party Highlight Elks Meeting

Circleville Wives Are Hostesses At District Event

Circleville Elks lodge number 77, was selected to be hosts for the quarterly meeting of the south-central district, which was held Saturday and Sunday in the home of the local chapter. This was a gala event for the local lodge, as it was the first time in the history of the club, that it had been presented with such an honor.

Elks from 14 lodges and officers of the state organization were present for the Saturday and Sunday open-house.

The festivities opened with registration of all members and ladies Saturday at 6 p. m. which was followed by a dance in the club ball room. Attending the two day south central district meeting were members of Elks' lodges from Athens, Chillicothe, Columbus, Gallipolis, Ironton, Lancaster, Nelsonville, Newark, New Lexington, Logan, Portsmouth, Marysville and Jackson.

Bill Vaughn's orchestra from Columbus, furnished music for the dance held Saturday evening, with more than 400 members and guests present for the gay affair. A special show was put on by members of the orchestra, which consisted of clever pantomimes, and jokes, interspersed with musical interpretations. Sheldon Powell read a number of circle dances, and a novel dance arrangement, which he calls his, "broom partner dance". The dance was the highlight of the two day party. The happy carefree crowd made the dance a real success. Frocks worn by the ladies, formed a setting of varied colors which were of vivid and brilliant hues.

Paul H. Betz, district chairman, appointed wives of officers, in the local lodge to serve as hostesses for the occasion. Mrs. Betz headed the hospitality committee. She was assisted by Mrs. N. E. Reichelderfer, Mrs. Leland E. Pontious, Mrs. D. D. Henkle, Mrs. Russell Valentine, Mrs. Monroe J. Valentine, Mrs. Clydus Fausnaugh, Mrs. Edwin Plum, Mrs. William D. Radcliff and Mrs. William A. Goodchild.

Sunday afternoon, 11 tables of contract progressive bridge, three tables of euchre, and two tables of auction bridge were in progress. Bows of bronze and white snapdragons, jonquils and other small Spring flowers were placed on mantles and tables, throughout the lounge rooms. Mrs. Reichelderfer served as chairman for the card party for the ladies. At the conclusion of the games and social afternoon, prizes were presented to those having high scores. Mrs. N. B. Woods, Jackson, Mrs. Luther Bower, Mrs. Pontious and Mrs. Fred Roundhouse were winners in the bridge game. Euchre winners were, Mrs. Russell Valentine and Mrs. George Dennis, Ashville. Door prizes were won by Mrs. Charles Goeller and Mrs. Allen Thornton.

Ralph Stone, Veterans administrator of Ohio, Kentucky and Michigan, of Conneaut, was guest speaker at the session for the men of the club Sunday afternoon. District officers, in charge of the meeting, presented short addresses to the assembly. Included in the group were Mr. Betz, district chairman, M. V. Slavins, vice-chairman, Jackson, W. F. Kesler, secretary-treasurer, Lancaster, W. B. Dohlin, treasurer, Jackson, C. S. Shirley, member of the executive committee, Athens, C. F. Mossholder, Newark, E. Sheldon Powell, Nelsonville and C. B. Cherler, Lancaster.

State officers that participated were, J. A. Kleinfeller, vice-president, Bucyrus, Nelson E. W. Stuart, third vice-president, Cleveland, E. Gene Fournace, secretary, Newark, Walter Beer, visitation committee, Lima, James Lynch, trustee, Chillicothe, and Major Edward T. Fogo, tyler, Wellsville.

Robert Dunkle, past state president, Chillicothe, Charles Schmidt, Columbus, and James Cooper, Newark.

Dinner was served in the club's recreation rooms, for more than 500 guests. Jimmie Carpenter prepared and served his famous roast beef dinner, with all the trimmings. Clydus Fausnaugh, chairman of the house committee, with his co-workers, assisted "Jimmie" in serving the guests. Frank Sisa entertained the crowd with accordion music as they were seated at the long tables during the dinner hour.

 Natural liberty is the gift of the beneficent Creator of the whole human race.—Alexander Hamilton.

Hints on Etiquette
 If you are introduced to a person you have known and with whom you are not friendly, simply say, "How do you do?" pleasantly and let it go at that. It will save embarrassment to the person who makes the introduction.

Today's Horoscope

You have great ambitions and desires, and they will take you far, if you accept the help of others as you go along. Instead of tramping them under foot. Accept love as it comes to you, even when you think it retards your upward struggle. Various influences operate in the next year, but some success is portended if you avoid hasty conduct. Act upon your own intuitions, rejecting the advice of elders. This day will be good, for talking things over, reaching agreements, straightening out misunderstandings. Previous issues may be brought up again. Born today a child should be allowed a free hand in the choice of a vocation and the ambition encouraged. There will be some interference by elderly relatives who try to jeopardize success and happiness.

VULNERABILITY THE KEY

THERE ARE times when the action of the other three players during the bidding makes them appear to show a greater total of strength than they could possibly have, in view of what you hold yourself. At such a time, you wonder who is telling a falsehood about his hand. Vulnerability is usually a key to the answer, if one side is vulnerable and the other not. The vulnerable side is probably telling the truth, and the opponents prevaricating because they are not taking too much risk and are striving to prevent a maximum score by the strong pair.

Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.
 North East South West
 1♦ Pass 1♥ Pass
 1♠ Dbl 2♥ Dbl
 2NT Pass 3NT

There North left it, and as a consequence a nice slam bonus was missed as twelve consecutive tricks were run. The opponents' doubles had bluffed North and South.

The big question, during the post-mortem, was about which partner was to blame for failing to reach the slam. Clearly it was North.

After East's double, South could not very well redouble with his kind of hand, and it would have been pretty hard for him to jump from 1-Spade to 3-Hearts over the double while there was still the possibility of a rank misfit. True enough, his mere 2-Hearts takedown of the adverse double sounded pretty weak. But he denied that weakness by his action on the next round after North had bid 2-No Trumps over West's heart double. South's 3-No Trumps on that round indicated clearly to North that he had a hand of some value at No Trumps, including a rebiddable heart suit.

Knowing now that South's hand was really pretty fair, North should at least have offered a mild slam invitation with 4-Diamonds, since his own hand was so much stronger than he had yet shown, containing seven-plus playing tricks. In that situation, a 4-No Trumps by South would have been a weakness signoff, not a Blackwood. But he would have shown a fit with 5-Diamonds. North thereupon could have gone to small slam in the suit if feeling conservative, or in No Trumps if he had eaten lots of eggs at breakfast.

Dealer: West. North-South vulnerable.

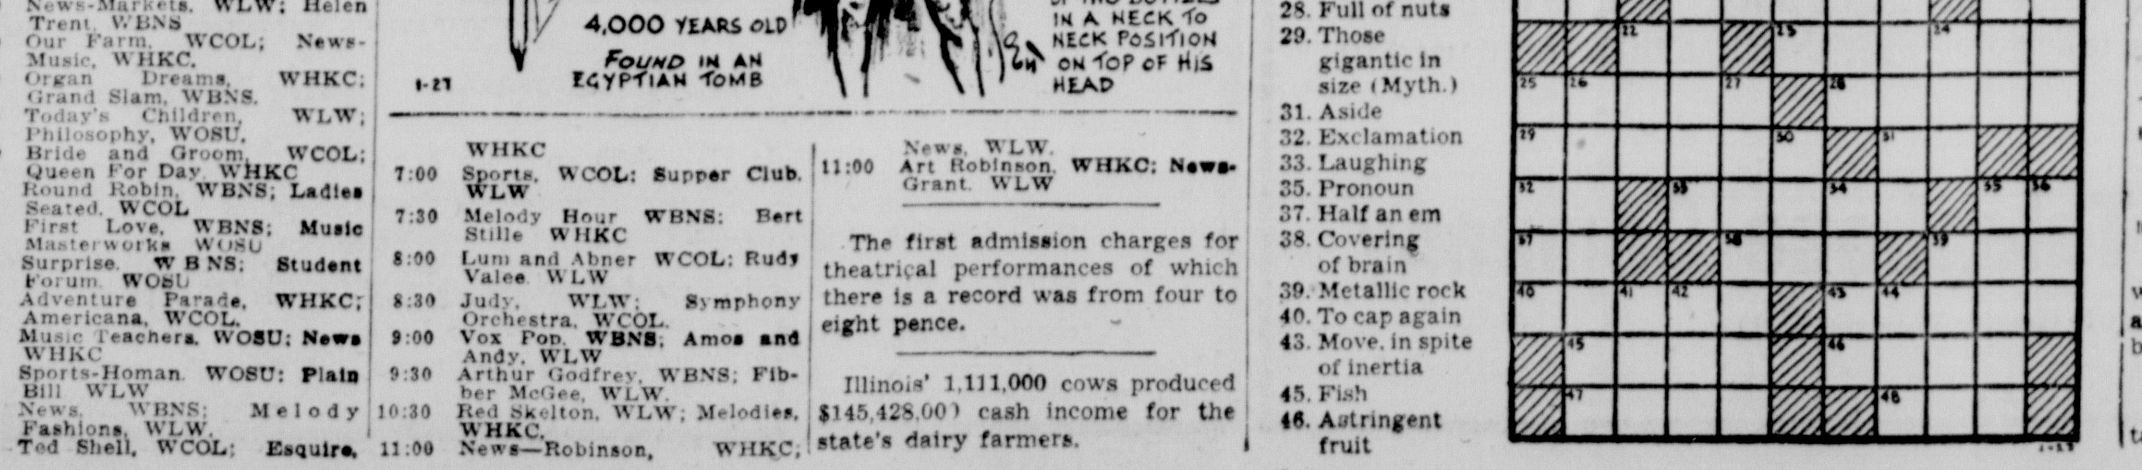

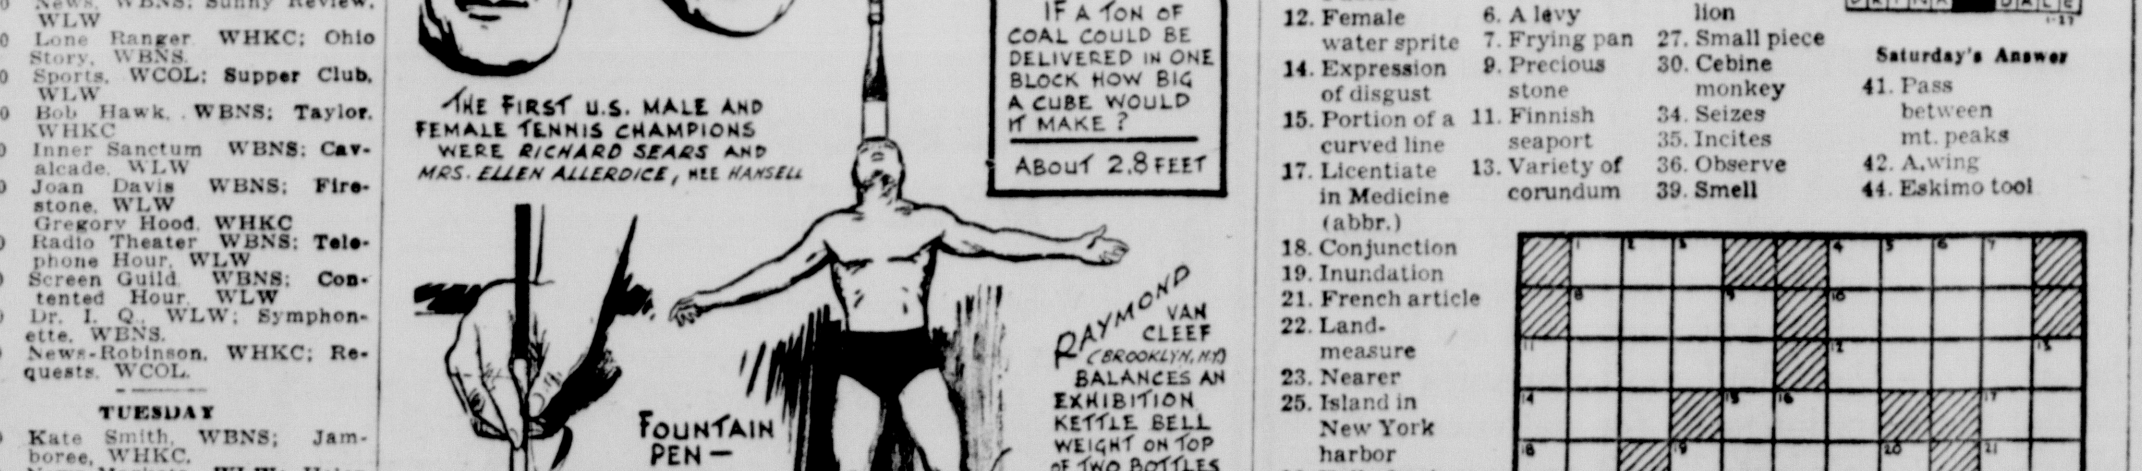

Following a club 10 lead, what later defensive play is essential to giving South the worst possible result at his 3-No Trumps contract?

If you are a new housekeeper and have some damask table linen to launder, arrange each piece in long folds so there will be no unnecessary wrinkling. Then, before the linen is completely dry, iron with a very hot iron. The heat will give the material a high gloss.
